LARGE VOTE LOOKED FOR IN CHARLEROI

Believed That From 1,200 to 1,300 Ballots Will be Polled

MANY STRAIGHT TICKETS

Large Number Reported From Various Precincts---Some Splitting Noted

One of the biggest votes ever polled in Charleroi is anticipated today. From estimates made at noon, it is believed that the total vote in the borough will be between 1,200 and 1,300. The first precinct as usual will have the heavy vote, and there will be more straight ballots cast in this precinct than in others, if indications at noon may be taken as conclusive.

Close to 600 votes had been cast at noon, according to figures reported from various precincts. In the first precinct at one o'clock there had been 125 ballots cast. At about the same time in the fourth precinct 115 votes had been cast. Voting was heavy at all the precincts.

In the first precinct indications were that many straight ballots were being cast. In the fourth, which is another large precinct reports were that there was much splitting of tickets.

HARD TO GET AWAY

Carl Behrendt, who recently returned from Europe had some exciting and interesting as well as unpleasant experiences in the war zone in Europe. Mr. Behredt left home June 13 and arrived at Stolberg, near the Holland-Belgium line, just a few days before war was declared on August 2. Two days later he said they could hear cannons.

Mr. Behrendt had difficulty to get money. He had checks but could not get them cashed. He appealed to the American consul, Robert J. Thompson at Aachen, but failed to get any assistance. The consul told him that he could do nothing for him. After about six weeks Mr. Behrendt appealed to the head official of the town and through him was able to get his checks cashed at a bank.

Mr. Behrendt was married while abroad and he had considerable trouble in getting his wedding approved. His citizenship papers had to go to Berlin with his applicaton and be approved by the German government. This took some time. He was married September 1.

Mr. Behrendt, immediately following the wedding went to the steamship agency and applied for passage for himself, wife and daughter. He was informed that the steamer Rotterdam would sail from Rotterdam about October 3, but that in order to

MUCH ENTHUSIASM AT REPUBLICAN RALLY

Final Meeting of Campaign Held in Charleroi by G. O. P. Men---Gov. Tener is One of Several Speakers

A rally that was characterized by wonderful enthusiasm in spite of the fact that it was arranged somewhat informally was held at the Republican headquarters in the Bank of Charleroi building Monday evening. Several speeches were made, including one by Gov. J. K. Tener, urging the voters to vote the straight Republican ticket today and to work hard for a glorious Republican victory. The sentiment of the meeting signified that there will be a big Republican vote cast today in Charleroi.

R. J. Whitehead was chairman of the meeting. Gov. Tener was introduced as the first speaker, and he outlined the reasons why the Republican ticket should be favored by the electors today. He told of the accomplishments of the Republican party and of the work it would do. He declared that the party was one of action. He came out strongly for the election of the entire Republican ticket.

State Controller Samuel C. Todd was called upon and he made a good address in support of the Republican ticket. Others who were called upon and who added to the general enthusiasm by their remarks were J. E. Masters, Robert Rupert, John S. Rodgers, B. L. Parsons, William Geltz, D. F. Ferguson, Gilbert Uptegraft, John Lowers, John W. Laverick, ex-Assemblyman William Feeney and John O'Neill. Some of these were from out of town and they gave glowing reports from their districts. One report that was characteristic was, "We are organized for the fray." One of the interesting features of the rally was the singing of a quartet composed of Walter Urben, Frank Miller, McClelland Phillips and Mark Wheeler.

Gov. Tener arrived in Charleroi Monday evening ready to cast his ballot today. When asked as to what predictions he had to make he replied, "My predictions are for a big Republican majority."

NEEDLE REMOVED FROM KNEE; NOW SHE IS REJOICING

After 13 years of pain and suffering, Mrs. Nan Storer of Monongahela now rests easier and is seemingly on the road to health. For years Mrs. Storer has been troubled with a growth on her left knee, and although many men of medicine have given expert opinions on the cause of the growth, and prescribed innumerable cures, it was for Dr. J. C. Munster of Pittsburg to find the real trouble. On operating, Dr. Munster found a long basting needle, which for all the 13 years and perhaps longer, had lain imbedded in the flesh. The needle was removed and the pain departed.

GIRL BADLY BURNED FROM CANDLE FIRE

Thelma Davis the 13-year-old daughter of Richard Davis of Ellsworth was badly burned Saturday evening when her clothing took fire from the flame of a small candle which she was carrying. The little girl was with a number of friends playing Hallowe'en pranks. Some of the children had these small candles which they had taken from the jack-o-lanterns. In some way the Davis girl's candle set fire to the sleeve of her dress and the flames soon enveloped her. Though frightened, with rare presence of mind she fell and rolled on the ground, partly extinguishing the blaze. Her cries brought help from the nearby houses, among them C. M. Schank, superintendent of the coke ovens, who succeeded in putting out the fire. The child was taken immediately to the hospital and her injuries dressed. She is suffering from the shock and the pain but is not thought to be in a serious condition.

ACCUSED MEN ENTER PLEAS OF GUILTY TO LIQUOR CHARGES

Illegal liquor sellers were before the court Monday. The majority were foreigners and had been following out the custom so prevalent among these people who conduct boarding houses of furnishing intoxicants to the boarders. Judge McIlvaine said that to sell beer or whiskey to boarders was just as much of an offense as selling otherwise. First offenders were given the usual sentence of three months to jail and $500 and costs. From the Burgettstown section came Lestilio Lagperr and Al Robinson; from Bulger, Frank Ensel, Andy Pishto and John Buck.

Rosie Obsetz from the Bentleyville section, admitted her guilt. She was represented by counsel. It was stated to the court that the woman's husband was dead and she ran a boarding house. Not knowing she was violating the law, she furnished her boarders with beer. It was asked that she be paroled, it being promised that she would not again engage in the business. The court postponed the matter for two weeks, pending a further investigation of the charges.

NOT ITALIAN BAND BUT THE SLOVAK BAND

Champion Potatoes

John Molinnato Comes to Front With Samples of Immense Vegetables

John Molinatto of Sixth street, is believed to be the champion potato raiser of Washington county, if not of the state of Pennsylvania. He raised 74 bushels of unusually large potatoes on one third of half an acre of ground. Only one third of the potatoes came up, two thirds of the seed was destroyed by ground moles.

The potatoes were planted the last day of June and did not come through the ground until July 20. At this rate he would raise about 444 bushels of potatoes to the acres.

SAVINGS DEPOSITS INCREASE

Charleroi Postoffice Report Shows Present Day Tendency

WAR ABROAD IS CAUSE

The war in Europe is proving a big boon to postal savings in this country. From the day hostilities opened across the seas postal savings receipts began to increase by leaps and bounds. At the Charleroi postoffice the increase has been particularly noticeable. The number of accounts have increased since January 1, 1914 from 35 to 60. The amount of deposits have increased from $2,508 to $5,886 or 134.7 per cent.

Thousands of people largely of foreign birth, accustomed to send their savings abroad are now patrons of the United States postal savings system. Enormous sums of actual cash have been released for commercial uses among the people at a time when the need for every available dollar is pressing.

The growth of postal savings in the United States has been steady and healthy and the system has filled an important gap between the tin-can depository and the factory paymaster. On July 1, when affairs were running smoothly here and abroad and the transmission of money across the Atlantic was safe and expeditious, there was approximately $43,000,000 of postal savings standing credit of about 388,000 depositors Since then over $10,000,000 of deposits have been added and the number of depositors has increased enormously. This unprecedented gain is the more striking when it is considerd that the net gain in the last three months is larger than the gain for the entire year of 1914.

WHAT KEEPS BEEF SO HIGH?

When range cattle that have never eaten grain grown bring the owners ten cents a pound in Chicago one potent cause for the high price of beef for the table is demonstrated. Ten cents for every pound of flesh, fat, horns, hoofs, hide and tallow easily explains the final high cost of beefsteak to the consumer, says an exchange.

These grass-fed cattle are able to bring $160 or more a head in the stockyards of Chicago because there are few of them compared with the great supply of several years ago. The great plains of the west have become so restricted by the advance of the farmers that the number of cattle that can be supported by the limited range that is left them is not sufficient to furnish the country as formerly with an abundant supply of good beef.

This condition is not going to change. The ranges left will grow smaller rather than larger and the supply of western cattle will decrease rather than increasee. Our eastern farmers have fallen into the habit of selling their calves for veal because there was not sufficient profit in raising them for beef and selling them in competition with the more cheaply raised range cattle of the west.

The present high price of beef with no prospect of its getting much lower should surely offer an inducement to eastern farmers to raise their calves as in the olden time when all the beef eaten here was that of cattle raised near at hand. In every eastern state there is plenty of land once forest-clad, but now little used, that is admirably fitted for cattle-raising. There is evidently money in cattle and eastern farmers are in a position, if they will, to secure a large share of it.

EVERY VOTER'S DUTY

By the time this issue of the Mail reaches its readers the most of the electors will have cast their ballots in the state, district and county election that is being held today. There will be however, still a large number yet to vote between the hours of five and seven o'clock, and it is these eleventh hour voters who will in a measure decide the result.

They are the workers who cannot cast their ballots until their daily toil is over, and economic policy they thus indorse will be one of the ruling factors in determing steadiness of employment and rate of wages.

This being the case it behooves these voters to choose wisely before casting their ballots. A wrong decision at this time may be fatal.

There are county, district and state issues to be decided. In addition there is an important local issue to be decided in the $75,000 bond issue for municipal improvements. Upon all these issues it is vastly important that the eleventh hour man carefully considers and then casts his ballot.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

It was dinner time at a high-class boarding establishment in a Monongahela valley town. The statistical boarder, who it might be explained is a first cousin to the genus who interminably is asking for "someone to drive the cow down his way," occupied the center of interest by reason of his proclivities for conversation.

"Well," he said, leaning back in his chair, "we have at this meal the representation of two widely-separated generations."

"How is that?" asked the inquisitive boarder, rising to the occasion.

"Why, the hen we have been trying to eat was, in all probability, the great-great-grandmother of this omelotte!"

Then there fell a palpable silence.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside a department called the "Headwork Shop"—devoted to practical suggestions made by farmers—is given up to describing ways and means for getting rid of rats. The statement is made by one contributor that there are on the average 30 people and 150 rats to the square mile in the United States. Another contributor describes as follows how to bell rats:

"Procure a dozen little toy bells used for children's play lines, a spool of wire and any trap to catch them alive. Bait the trap, and catch as many as you can and let them get really hungry. Then empty the rats into a barrel or box from which they cannot escape.

"Put on a heavy leather glove, reach in, grab a rat by the back, and with wire fasten the bell on the rat's neck and turn him loose. Do the same with all you have caught. In two days not a rat can be found."

Mr. Behrendt said that he saw thousands of wounded soldiers. During six weeks while he was in Stolberg 26,000 French troops passed through the town. The people have had to undergo great hardship. Mr. Behrendt has a brother living in Germany who has four sons in the German army.

Mr. Behrendt found the censorship on letters very strict. He was not permitted to write anything in English, and if he rote in German was not allowed to even mention the war. Postcards were all that were allowed to go through the mail. He wrote one card to his family here, but he had so much difficulty in getting it through that he didn't try to write again.

Mr. Behrendt stated that more than four weeks ago it was said in Germany that Turkey was going to join in the war. He said that the war made him rejoice that he was a citizen of the United States and that he felt much relieved when he landed in New York.

CHARLEROI MAY BE ADMITTED TO LEAGUE TOMORROW

Magnates of the West Penn Basketball league will meet in the office of the Pittsburg Dispatch sporting editor Wednesday night for the purpose or arranging plans for the approaching season. It is expected that several new applicants for franchises will be on hand, and it may be that the circuit will be closed at once. It is the desire of the league officials to get under way during Thanksgiving week.

The clubs already in line are Southside, Crafton, Jeannette and Homestead. Irwin will without doubt be entered and it is believed that a strong club from McDonald will go along. The application of the Charleroi team will be acted upon and it is hoped that some plan can be devised whereby the objection entered by two teams owing to mileage can be overcome.

It is stated that Carnegie, with Honus Wagner at the helm, will be entered, but this isn't a certainty yet. Carnegie will be represented at Wednesday night's meeting and something may be done. The application of East Palestine will also be acted upon, although there is a chance that the matter of mileage will prove a serious drawback to Manager Ward's aggregation.

The West Penn's prospects are of the brightest and the coming season promises to be the best in the organization's history.

DATE PREEMPTED FOR JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL OPERETTA

CLEVELAND VISIT A TRICK OF CUPID

A telegram received Monday by her mother, Mrs. A. C. Gillingham of Monongahela brought the surprising news that Mrs. Bess Acker was married to Samuel Chegwyn, a tobacco merchant of Berea, Ohio.

Mrs. Acker, who was formerly in the employ of the grocery firm of Corrin & Penrod, left Saturday saying that she had been called to Cleveland on business, but that she would return soon. The news of her marriage came as a surprise to her many friends.

Mrs. Acker and Mr. Chegwyn were old playmates and school friends. After the days of early youth they drifted apart and both were united in marriage. Now the fates who control such things have strangely manipulated the wires and the two old friends are man and wife.

MEMORY OF THE CIVIL WAR

Priest Shared Blanket With Puritan and Had an Idea the Angels Were Not Displeased.

While the trouble in Mexico is inspiring patriotic emotions in those Americans who are zealous for their country's repute, and Civil war memories are being revived by the steadily diminishing survivors of that great struggle, this story of the late Rev. Joseph H. Twichell is of peculiar interest. It relates to the friendship existing between the Hartford pastor and a Roman Catholic priest who was his brother chaplain in a certain brigade of the northern army. It occurred on the night of the battle of Fredericksburg. Let the Protestant preacher tell it in his own way:

We had both been active for hours and by midnight were compelled to have sleep. So we went to one side of the camp and lay down under the sky. It was very cold and we had only a blanket apiece. After a time Father O'Hagan called to me to ask if I were asleep.

"No," said I. "It's so cold I can't get to sleep."

"Neither can I," retorted he. "Let's club our blankets."

We did, and we lay there side by side with two blankets over us instead of one. I was falling asleep when I felt him shaking beside me and asked what was the matter. He was laughing softly and didn't answer for a moment. It seemed to me a queer place to laugh, for we were in the midst of hundreds of dead and wounded soldiers.

"I'm laughing at us," he said finally.

"Why, what do you mean?"

"Us two here—me a Jesuit priest, and you a Puritan parson—snuggled up here under the same blankets."

A minute or two passed and then he looked up into the sky and said quietly: "But I shouldn't wonder if the angels like to look at it."

Hens Not Perfect.

A farmer living not far from Boston was disappointed the other day when Mrs. Blank, one of his regular customers, refused to buy any more eggs from him.

"They are not satisfactory," she told him. "Some of the last lot were not fit to use."

"But, Mrs. Blank," remonstrated the old man, "a hen is bound to lay a bad egg now and ag'in."

Two ways of getting along

Which wins?

Now and then, we hear people say that they can get along without a typewriter. Yes, we believe that. Only forty years ago everybody got along without one.

So they did, a little further back, without the steam engine and the railroad train. They got along without them because there were none.

Anyone today who thinks he can get along without the typewriter because he can do his writing with the pen, is like the man who thinks he doesn't need the railroad because he can walk. In your method of writing you may be "walking" today. If so, then remember that the railroad is built and—

How to Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read last year before the Bexar County Medical Society and published in part in the Louisville "Medical Progress," Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation causes with tuberculosis unchecked. The widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the deficient (lime lacking) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Thus from another authoritative medical source comes justification for the use of lime in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Since this is one of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative, much of the success attending the widespread use of this remedy doubtless is due to the combination of this salt in such a way as to render it easily assimilable. It causes no stomach disturbance, and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try.

Eckman's Alterative has effected remarkable results in numerous cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and allied chronic affections of the throat and bronchial passages. In many instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it.

In case your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to us.

Household Hints

The hardest part of housework is cleaning!

Ordinary soap and soap powders seemed good enough until the cleansing power of borax was discovered.

Borax is to soap what electricity is to the street car—borax makes soap do more work at less expense.

A 25c package of "20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips" will do more cleaning than 50c worth of bar soap and as much or more than 50c worth of soap powders.

DOGS UTILIZED IN WARFARE

Once Actual Participants in Hostilities, as Well as Made of Good Use in Other Ways.

"Dogs of war" is a phrase which once meant a thing as real as the war horse. Dogs have played their part in battles and campaigns, and in the old wars between England and Scotland dogs were used by both combatants for pursuing and killing fugitives after a defeat. It is related that Wallace and Bruce each had close escapes from capture by English bloodhounds. Bruce is said to have thrown the English dog off the scent by the now well-known expedient of wading up a stream far enough to baffle his pursuers, and Wallace evaded the hounds by having recourse to a trick more or less common in those bloody times, of killing a follower and leaving the body in the dogs' path for them to come upon. The dogs finding a body believed that their task was done and discontinued the hunt.

In the history of the wars of the middle ages one finds reference to the use of big dogs against cavalry for the purpose of throwing the horses into confusion and not alone for causing panic but casualties, for these fierce canine partisans were clothed in coats of mail studded with spikes and having scythes fitted to their harness.

Instances are recorded where war dogs with fire brands fastened to their coats of mail have been set on an enemy's camp with destructive results. Henry VIII must have found dogs useful in military ways, because in English history it is written that he offered the use of 40,000 auxiliaries and 4,000 war dogs to King Charles V of Spain to aid that monarch in his war with Francis I.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when the earl of Essex entered Ireland for the purpose of suppressing insurrection there his army was accompanied by 100 bloodhounds.

Boston Man Who Had Long Made Hotel His Home Remembered Old Friends in Will.

There is one face and one kindly smile missing in the lobby and dining room of Young's hotel that will be missed for a long time by those to whom the man who owned them had become a part of the big hostelry, says the Boston Journal.

The man was Henry K. Barnes, a man whom some called a "lonely old bachelor," without kith or kin. But these didn't know, as the employes of Young's hotel can testify to. For 40 years—as many as he had been a guest of the hotel—the old man had many kith, and they ranged from the pretty young telephone girls in the lobby down to the aging head waiter, George Betts, who had been in the hotel as long as Mr. Barnes, a member of the firm of R. K. Barnes & Co., manufacturer of leather supplies, had been there himself.

As an evidence of the esteem in which he held these friends, the old man, "without kith or kin," has left many bequests to his friends in the hotel, and they are telling over there of the many things he did while making the hotel his home to make life a bit more cheerful for those with whom he came in daily contact. There are instances told of how he sent young stenographers home in taxicabs when the rain or snow was bad—there are others who are keeping post cards sent them by Mr. Barnes from far southern places when he was away on business trips—and for Christmas gifts and ordinary gifts they are saying at Young's that it will be a long time before any one can take his place.

FIXED HIM FOR THE EVENING

Wherever He Went, Wife Was Pretty Sure Hubby Would Not Do Any Roof Gardening.

Dr. A. F. Christian, a Boston physician, announces that ice cream is the best remedy for alcoholism. At a recent luncheon, Doctor Christian, apropos of this fact, told a story.

"Roof gardens," he said, "and roof gardening, during the wife's absence at the seashore, are responsible for a good deal of midsummer alcoholism. But, if the wife is home, she can restrain the roof-gardening tendencies on her husband's part.

"Thus, a would-be roof gardener said to his wife the other evening after dinner:

"'I'll have to return to the office right away, my dear. And I'm afraid I'll be kept rather late. I've got to post my books for the entire month.'

"'Will you be going anywhere else besides the office?' she said, calmly.

"'Er—no,' he replied.

"'Then,' said she, 'I'll just ask you to stop in at the corner grocery before it closes and get me a couple of nice salt mackerel. You can bring them home with you afterward.'

"'Er—all right,' he muttered.

"Then, as he set out, gloomily, his wife said to herself with a smile:

"'Well, I guess he won't do much roof-gardening tonight with two great big wet mackerel in his pocket.'"

Latest Engine of Warfare.

A terrible weapon of warfare has been invented. In the British Naval Annual for 1914, just published, there is a description of a contrivance that might almost be described as devilish.

It is of the Leon torpedo mine, which has now been acquired and is being manufactured by a British firm. This engine is so constructed that it can be set to hover between any depths below the surface that may be desired. When placed in the water it has a slight negative buoyancy, and sinks until automatically a propeller is brought into action which drives it upwards again. It can be used in the open sea by any type of ship, or, in the case of tidal harbors, it could be released by a vessel outside so as to make its way with the tide into the anchorage, and perhaps destroy shipping there. A touch on the deadly steel "whiskers" which project from its upper surface, and the enemy would be sent to the bottom.

Practical Danish Schools.

In the schools of Denmark, "reading and spelling are not mechanized and treated as arts complete in themselves, but taught in an incidental way. Separate spelling is unknown." These schools have been carefully studied by men sent by Commissioner Claxton to find out how they have changed "a poor, war-crippled country into a rich, happy one." Character development is one of the chief aims of the folk high school, and men and women of all ages go to school to learn how to do their daily work better. The men attend mainly in winter and the women in summer.—The World's Chronicles.

No Piker.

"Of course you know what our curriculum is?" said the head of a young woman's finishing school to Mr. Newrocks, who had called to enter his daughter.

"No, I don't," answered Mr. Newrocks, "but put that in the bill, too, and I'll pay for it."

ONLY THE HEAD USED

PECULIAR GAME OF "FOOTBALL" IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Among the Odd Things Observed by Theodore Roosevelt in His Travels This Sport Is Noted as Worth Recording.

Well, these Parecis Indians enthusiastically play football with their heads. The game is not only native to them, but I have never heard or read of its being played by any other tribe or people. They use a light hollow rubber ball, of their own manufacture. It is circular and about eight inches in diameter. The players are divided into two sides, and stationed much as in association football, and the ball is placed on the ground to put in play, as in football. Then a player runs forward, throws himself flat on the ground and butts the ball toward the opposite side. This first butt, when the ball is on the ground, never lifts it much and it rolls and bounds toward the opponents. One or two of the latter run toward it; one throws himself flat on his face and butts the ball back. Usually this butt lifts it, and it flies back in a curve well up in the air, and an opposite player, rushing toward it, catches it on his head with such a swing of his brawny neck, and such precision and address, that the ball bounds back through the air as a football soars after a drop kick. If the ball flies off to one side or the other it is brought back, and again put into play. Often it will be sent to and fro a dozen times, from head to head, until finally it rises with such a sweep that it passes far over the heads of the opposite players and descends behind them. Then shrill, rolling cries of good-humored triumph arise from the victors, and the game instantly begins again with fresh zest.

There are, of course, no such rules as in a specialized ball game of civilization, and I saw no disputes. There may be eight or ten, or many more players on each side. The ball is never touched with the hands or feet, or with anything except the top of the head. It is hard to decide whether to wonder most at the dexterity and strength with which it is hit or butted with the head, as it comes down through the air, or at the reckless speed and skill with which the players throw themselves headlong on the ground to return the ball if it comes low down. Why they do not grind off their noses I cannot imagine. Some of the players hardly ever failed to catch and return the ball if it came in their neighborhood, and with such a vigorous toss of the head that it often flew in a great curve for a really astonishing distance.—Theodore Roosevelt, in Scribner's Magazine.

Seine Broke; Fish Got Away.

After having been for eight weeks on the Cape Shore fishing grounds off Nova Scotia seeking mackerel the fishing schooner Veda McKown reached the fish pier with only 5,000 large, fresh and 127 barrels of salted mackerel in her hold.

Crew members complained of the hard luck encountered during the trip, and after the schooner had tied up circulated that the breaking of a seine cost them about $2,000. The schooner encountered a large school of mackerel off Canso. The seine boat was quickly launched and within a short time had circled the school with the seine. However, the seine broke as it was pursed, and all except the 5,000 mackerel which the schooner brought escaped.

The fishermen estimated that there were fully twenty thousand fish in the school, and each of the 15,000 that got away would have been worth 15 cents at the fish pier, that being the price quoted for large, fresh mackerel.

Monocle as a Courage Inspirer.

Jack Heaton Armstrong, an aristocratic young Englishman, has just returned home from Albania with a story of the awe in which his monocle was held by the unsophisticated soldiers of the Moret, while he was in command of a field gun used against the rebels.

Armstrong, who is a brother of the private secretary of Prince William, set out from Alesso with Chief Prenk for the relief of the prince, then besieged in his capital. Prenk had 2,000 men and one field gun. Armstrong commanded the gun.

No matter how hot the fire, the soldiers never deserted the gun, which was aimed and fired by the monocled Englishman. As they had never seen a monocle before they thought it essential to aiming, or a kind of range finder. Armstrong did not dispel their illusion.

News on the Ocean.

The first transatlantic liner to publish a newspaper made up of wireless items was the American liner St. Paul. It was 14 years ago while Mr. Marconi was crossing the Atlantic on that vessel that he personally directed the issuing of the first number of the Transatlantic Times, the first wireless newspaper published at sea. Such publications now include the Daily Bulletin of the Cunard line, Das Atlantische Tageblatt of the Hamburg-American and the Ocean Times of the White Star line. On the Pacific on the steamers running to Alaska the Wireless Herald is published. The stations at Poldhu and Cape Cod furnish most of the wireless news received on board the transatlantic liners in regard to what is going on on shore.

WAR BULLETINS

Vienna, Nov. 3.—On the Russian-Turkish frontier near Trebizond battle has commenced between Russian and Turkish troops.

London, Nov. 3.—Turkey is said to be making frantic efforts to keep out of the war. It is stated that the grand vizier has tendered to the powers on behalf of Turkey an apology for the acts of the Turkish battle ships in their raid on Russian Black sea ports. A combined British and French squadron in the gulf of Techelme sank two Turkish warships. They were the Turkish gunboat Beruk Reis and the Turkish armed steamship Kinaliadda. In 1770 a decisive battle was fought between Turkish and Russian ships at the same point. It is said that the allies are not anxious to press Turkey and would much prefer that she remain out of the war.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—In the attack by the Germans on Ypser, further ground has been gained and Messines has been occupied by the German troops. Gains have been made by the Germans in the Argonnes. Russian attempts to break through near Tzetkehmen failed.

Paris, Nov 3.—Between the North sea and the Oise the attacks have been less violent. In Belgium the allies have progressed at the south of Dixmude and at the south of Ghelavel. A violent German offensive between Braye-en-Lannois and Vailly in the region of Aisne has completely failed.

Petrograd, Nov. 3.—On the front in east Prussia the Russian troops have repulsed German attacks directed against Vladiziavoff, driven the Germans from the eastern edge of Rominten forest, and advanced to the north of Lake Raigorod. Beyond the Vistula the Russian troops continue the offensive without being opposed. In the region of Opatow the Austrians attempted to resist the Russians with considerable force. In Galicia on the San river the Russian troops entered the village of Nisko where fierce fighting took place.

Leprosy in North America.

In adopting a resolution favoring a bill before congress for the establishment of a national leper colony in the United States, the rather startling statement was made that the number of lepers in this country was estimated at between 300 and 500. There must have been a great increase of these cases within the last quarter of a century if these figures are correct, and it is high time that some provision for segregating the lepers in a place where they can receive humane treatment was made.

The lepers in the colony at Malokai, Hawaii, are comparatively happy in spite of their affliction. They have companionship, sanitary quarters, the most scientific treatment, and everything possible is done to make their lot endurable. It is almost impossible to imagine what a leper in this country, confined alone in a shack and treated much as the lepers were in Biblical times, must suffer. It would be more humane to put him out of his misery at once.

There are only about 20 lepers in England, and yet a leper colony is to be established there in a deserted part of the county of Essex. The late Lord Strathcona left a bequest of $25,000 for this purpose. Surely if there is need of a leper colony in England, where there are only 20 cases, there is much more need for one in the United States, where there are between 300 and 500 cases, isolated but widely scattered.—Argus.

Value of Cool Nights.

Heat waves, says Edwin C. Martin, author of "Our Own Weather," prove disastrous directly in proportion as hot nights are combined with hot days. "For a number of days successively the heat may mount during the day to extraordinary heights, but if the intervening nights turn comparatively cool the number of prostrations and deaths will be much less than under a considerably lower temperature continuing with scant abatement through the day and night. Thus any situation that peculiarly favors cooling off at night has a clear advantage during the prevalence of a hot wave. It is also an advantage to be inured to heat. The same degree of it that would cause great suffering to the people of the North imposes nothing more than discomfort on the people of the South.

Wronged.

Representative Henry told at a tea in Waco an international alliance story.

"The fair young daughter of the billionaire"—such was Mr. Henry's sneering beginning—"had accepted the earl of Lacland; but her father still seemed ill at ease.

"'I don't believe,' the old man complained, 'I don't believe that boy has sound ideas of finance.'

"'You are wrong, papa,' the young girl answered. 'Why, he stopped right in the middle of his proposal to ask how many interlocking directorates you held.'"

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. THOMSON, 649 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Save the Dog.

The Oregon state board of health bulletin says wisely with reference to mad dogs. "never kill the animal that bit you, save it with the greatest care," for the condition that dog develops is of the greatest consequence to the person bitten. If the dog is killed, the negri bodies, which are of importance in the diagnosis, may not be developed and no one will ever know whether the dog was or was not rabid. But if the dog is saved he will himself within a week or ten days show whether or not be is rabid. If he proves himself clear of rabies the man bitten need give the matter no further consideration from that side, and if it prove that he be rabid, there is still plenty of time for the man to take the proper remedies. If a dog bites you, save the dog.

Hadn't Seen Them.

A correspondent from Cheshire, England, says: "I came upon a small boy not long ago who was moodily fishing with an improvised rod and hook in the muddy waters of the canal. I cannot but believe that he will make a great fisherman some day, for he seemed to have the dogged perseverance necessary for the craft. But he was clearly far from happy. He paid no attention to me at all but mournfully pursued the matter in hand. 'What are you doing?' I asked him at last. 'Fishing for snigs?' 'I don't know,' he replied, drearily, 'I've never caught any yet.'"

Sad Ending of Expedition.

Captain Kelsey, leader of the Cape to Cairo motor car expedition, has died as the sequel to the injuries which he received on April 12 while leopard hunting. Thus tragically ends the Cape to Cairo expedition, which started so auspiciously, the king himself receiving its members at Buckingham palace, the Duchess of Argyll christening the car, the governor-general presenting it with a flag, and large bodies of friends in Cape Colony bidding it farewell.

DECRIES MODERN WAYS

ENGLISH PREACHER URGES RETURN TO OLD IDEAS.

Sees Evil Days Ahead for the Nation in the Decay of Family Life —Wealthy Homes Included in the Excoriation.

An emphatic protest against what he regarded as the decay of family life in the country, followed by the warning that it would conduce to the fall of England, as it led in great part to the fall of Greece and Rome in ancient times, was made by Canon Rawnsley in the course of a sermon preached at St. Paul's cathedral, London, England.

Beginning his remarks with a description of the home life of Christ as a child, he declared that the nursery of the salvation of the world was home and home life. It was a fact patent on all sides that home and the discipline of home were on the wane, and with this were being lost the best opportunities there were for noble education. There was something about the atmosphere of a Jewish home which was learned by no direct teaching, but which breathed its benison upon the household and unconsciously affected it. That was the duty owed to the parents and the solidarity of the family tie.

Among Christian people, he said, in the homes of the poor it was often the woman who was called upon to drudge till she died to keep the family together. The idea of being responsible for such care of girlhood as would prevent its ruin was a thing unthinkable in many a house. The girl, as soon as she had her evening meal, went out with her friend and came home when she would. Little children of three and four openly defied their parents, and he had seen such parents apparently showing off to a circle of admiring friends on a bank holiday 'the spirit that is in him' when a creature of six kicked his father's shins and cursed his mother to her face.

In the homes of the wealthy the same cancer of lack of parental authority and want of discipline was felt. The parents were tolerated by the rising generation rather than held in reverence. A familiarity which tended to make a father's word of no avail was fostered from early days. The nexus between son and home as soon as the young man went out into the world was a purely cash nexus, and the girl grew up to feel that home duties were intolerable. At the first opportunity she would join her girl friend in a flat and arrange her life without any reference to her father or mother.

"Greece passed away with all its brilliance partly because it had no home life," he continued. "Rome found its belief in home life too weak to withstand the change from city state to empire, and the corroding influence of a decadent orientalism. There is nothing that would prevent our going the way of Greece and Rome unless we will once more make the ideal of home that Christ would have it to be, open the eyes of the fathers and mothers of the land to their sense of opportunity as the makers of the character of the next generation, and recall the children to the duties owed to the home."

He Decided to Turn Out.

It took 1,200 pounds of dynamite to force a "road hog" descending the Bear Creek hill, in Santa Ana canyon to give the right of way to Henry Shay, of the Bear Valley Transportation company, who was headed for the top. At a narrow stretch in the grade the two machines stopped within a few feet of each other. There was no room to turn out except on some rocks.

"I have a heavy truckload, and can't make it," Shay told the driver of the touring car.

"That's not my fault," retorted the other. "I won't turn out."

"Well, all right. Smash into my machine if you want to!" yelled Shay. "There's 1,200 pounds of dynamite aboard."

The descending automobile backed up and turned out without further ceremony.—San Bernardino (Cal.) Dispatch Los Angeles Times.

Quick Wit Balks Robbers.

John Neale and William P. Shepard, cashier and assistant cashier of the Sackett & Wilhelms Lithograph company, carrying a bag containing $9,500 were held up by three young men as they waited for the elevator in the plant of the company at Grand street and Morgan avenue, Williamsburg, N. Y. Two of the men drew revolvers and the third assailed Neale and Shepard with a blackjack. Neale hung on to the bag as he fell, but dropped it just as the elevator came down. Charles H. Booth, the elevator man, saw what was happening, seized the bag, threw it back into the elevator, and before the astonished highwaymen knew what was happening, he was shooting aloft. The holdup men got away, leaving Neale and Shepard badly bruised.

Vocational Work in a Building.

An experimental school of vocational education is planned to be opened in the Woolworth building, New York, by the Merchants' association, with the co-operation of the board of education and the employers of more than 100 of the boys and girls who work in the building. The school will be in charge of the association's committee on vocational education.

FABLE DEALING WITH ADVICE

Will Be Interesting Alike to Those Who Offer and Those Who Seek Guidance.

Once, on a day when many problems rose up and encompassed me about as high walls my friend came to me with admonition in his eyes and advice on his tongue.

And, because of the love that was between us, I hearkened unto the words of my friend and did as he advised. But his advice brought me no good thing. Nay, rather it led me deeper into my prison of questionings. And when I saw that my troubles were multiplied upon me I sought out my friend again to ask him why this should be. And I said:

"Lo! All that thou badest me do I have done, yet am I not released from my difficulty—rather is trouble multiplied upon me!"

And my friend lost patience with me and laughed me to scorn and said:

"If thou knewest that what I said would bring thee to no good end, why wast thou obedient to my voice? I advised for thy good—but thy life I cannot make for thee."

And at first I was wroth with my friend, but later, when I had lain still a long time with my thought, I was thankful unto him.

For I said, "Henceforth I will not ask advice only of my own mind, and the soul within me shall be a counseler."

And when I had sought the advice of my mind and taken counsel with mine own soul, I saw a path between the walls and knew where my feet should tread. And by that path I began to climb from my prison.

Then came other friends with advice on their tongues and cried unto me.

"Not this way! Not this way!"

But I hearkened not unto them, for I felt that I was destined to be mine own deliverer. And at last there came a day when the walls of my prison lay below me and when I could smile upon my friends and say.

"Lo, it was the right path!"

But my friends only smiled back at me with right good will and said:

"You have had good luck. We are glad."—Marguerite Wilkinson.

TREE AGRICULTURE NOT NEW

Immense Possibilities When the Subject Has Been Thoroughly and Scientifically Sifted.

The modern conception of "tree agriculture" is new—it is only a few years since men began to discuss the possibility of substituting permanent trees for annual seed-bearing grains as the world's food supply. But the fact of tree agriculture is very old, and few who live in northern lands have any idea how far it has progressed in the hot regions.

There are some 60,000,000 cocoanut trees in the island of Ceylon, valued at nearly $200,000,000. They furnish much of the food supply of the inhabitants. The date palms of the Pacific are other examples of tropical fruit trees; and the chestnuts, carobs and olives of southern Europe show something of what can be done in cooler climates.

In the grasp of modern science, trees are as pliant as animals. When we consider what has been accomplished in animal breeding in the last two centuries, we get some idea of tree farming as our descendants may practice it 200 years hence.

Wallachs in History.

The Wallachs have a large legendary literature, ballads of past history, folklore, fireside tales and songs. To this subject Lazar devotes one of the most interesting chapters in the book. He has not aimed at presenting anything like a complete record, but his specimens show what a wealth of material here awaits investigation and record before the encroachments of newer culture have destroyed this invaluable record of the life of an interesting folk. Material of this sort now stands upon a high plane. It is recognized that it is worthy of studious attention as preserving records of the life of a people such as are lacking to the aridity of chronicles and documents of history.

Traits of British Troops.

When discussing the peninsular campaign with John Wilson Croker Wellington told him that "the national character of the three kingdoms was strongly marked in my army. I found the English regiments always in the best humor when we were well supplied with beef; the Irish when we were in the wine countries, and the Scotch when the dollars for pay came up. This looks like an epigram, but I assure you it was a fact, and quite perceptible. But we managed to reconcile all their tempers, and I venture to say that in our later campaigns, and especially when we crossed the Pyrenees, there never was an army in the world in better spirits, better order or better discipline."

Pythagoras Didn't Know.

Everybody has puzzled over the impression that what he is doing or seeing or hearing he has done or seen or heard before. Professor Bergson, in a lecture in Edinburgh, explained the phenomenon. It is due to psychasthenia, and answers to the name of paramnesia. What happens is that "an insufficiency of psychical impetus causes our attention continually to flag and revive again, so that we continually feel ourselves simultaneously in the past and in the present in memory and in perception."

GRAND JURY ORGANIZES; FEW PRESENT

Notwithstanding the fact that just 13 out of the 24 grand jurors summoned turned up Monday the grand jury got down to work and disposed of the list of cases set for the day. There is no court today and there will be little doing about the temple of justice. The court directed the sheriff to round up the 11 delinquent jurors and notify them to be present on Wednesday morning. The sheriff has already got in touch with several who were not present. The number present was the smallest ever present on the first day. On one other occasion there was a very small number present, but more than present Monday. At that time an adjournment was taken until some of the jurors were rounded up and summoned again. It was decided to go ahead and hear the few cases listed. No doubt the full panel of jurors will be on hand Wednesday. After the usual charge given by Judge J. A. McIlvaine the court appointed Elmer R. Deems of Washington, foreman.

John Carroll a mine foreman at the Shoenberger mine, near Monongahela entered a plea of guilty to a violation of the mining laws. He had neglected to take certain precautions as to a door in the mine. He was fined $10 and costs.

WICKEDNESS IS NOT PREVALENT SAY CONSTABLES

The constables made their quarterly returns Monday to the court at Washington. There was little out of the ordinary. Any returns made were turned over to the district attorney for investigation. John C. Sargent of East Bethlehem township was questioned closely as to alleged violations of the liquor law in his community. Constable Sargent was very emphatic in his statement that he knew of no such places, and insisted on explaining just what he had been doing. The district attorney questioned him as to alleged places in Newtown, but the officer professed ignorance. The district attorney's tone indicated a suspicion that the officer was perhaps a little defective in his eyesight, when it came to seeing certain violations.

Relative to the arrest of violators of the speed law the court informed the officers that it was just as much their duty to arrest such violators as it was violators of the hunting or other laws. Some of the constables had taken the view they had not power to make arrest in speed law violations.

ROOSTER FIGHT SUNDAY NIGHT

Just across the river from Roscoe about midnight Sunday night, in an old stable an interesting rooster fight was pulled off by men that came up from Wheeling and Pittsburg. Not far from the Alice mine shaft lives a chicken fancier who has a fine lot of game roosters. They paid this man $25 for the loan of several of these. Over $800 changed hands. The Fayette county man's rooster cleaned out everything in sight.

NO WAGE INCREASE FOR RAILWAYS MEN; DECISION IS GIVEN

The arbitrators in the dsipute between the Pittsburg Railways company and its employes as to wages and conditions of employment Monday handed down a decision for the most part adverse to the claims of the men. The board was composed of Attorney James C. Gray, representing the company; Congressman Stephen G. Porter, representing the employes and Judge Joseph Buffington of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, as umpire. Congressman Porter filed a dissenting opinion. The decision is therefore practically that of Judge Buffington.

All the points of contention as to wages by the men were refused. In the matter of the dispute about Sunday pay, the company asked for a decrease and the men for an increase and both were refused.

ONE HURT WHEN CARRIAGE UPSETS

When the carriage in which she was riding overturned near the foot of the Cokeburg hill, Miss Josephine Yavish of Ellsworth was badly bruised and her head and neck cut by pieces of broken glass on which she fell. Along with three other persons, Miss Yavish was going to Ellsworth. When the end of the long hill came, the horse would not make the turn and it and the carriage went over the embankment. Miss Yavish was the only one injured. She was taken to her home and her condition pronounced no cause of alarm.

Until Monday the quarantine was limited to certain counties in Michigan and Indiana and the Chicago stock yards.
